

HIST 2012:
Graduate Writing Seminar
Instructor: Molly Warsh
Monday, 1-3:25pm

This course is designed for graduate students and Honors undergraduate students working on a major writing project, such as an M.A. paper, a dissertation chapter, a journal article, a grant proposal, or an Honors thesis. Class assignments are designed to guide students through the writing process so they can produce a draft of their respective project by the end of the semester, in consultation with their advisors. A key goal of the course is to enhance students' capacity to edit their written work and that of others. In addition, students will learn about the process of publishing articles and books.
